

A CD-ROM is shown from a top-down perspective, lying on a dark surface. The disc is divided vertically into two distinct halves. The left half is coated with a thin, reflective layer, while the right half is uncoated, revealing the dark, textured substrate. Both halves reflect the surrounding environment, including a window with a view of a building and trees. The central hole of the disc is visible in the middle.

beschichtete
Hälfte

unbehandelte
Fläche